OS X version update 10.6.3 for Snow Leopard has been released and it appears stable and productive. The iPad sales numbers reported by Apple continue to exceed expectations.

This month, we talked mostly about digital cameras, image file management, and color printing. Wayne Jacintho gave us an enlightening presentation on the various factors and techniques involved in accurate printing of color images. We learned about printer profiles, color spaces, and how each screen and printer needs to be matched for accurate color representation.

Group discussion touched on browser security and we intend to have a network security expert talk with us at a future meeting. Research shows us that passwords are sent in the clear when SSL is properly implemented on the web server.

Thank you for your interest in our renewed Kaua`i Macintosh User Group meetings. We hope to see this group grow and gain momentum, for the benefit of all. Please keep in touch and sign up on our email and phone list.
